TENNESSEE BAPTISTS PREPARE TO HELP IN LOUISIANA

Slow-moving storms are causing record flooding and significant damage as they move across South Louisiana. Thousands of residents have evacuated, at least three people have died, and there is significant property damage and loss to more than 50,000 homes. At least three interstates are closed by the flooding of the Amite River and much of Louisiana State University's campus is covered by water.

The rising water is the result of more than 27 inches of rainfall over a 36-hour period near the city of Baker, just northeast of Baton Rouge. Disaster relief teams from across Tennessee will be put on alert and then the standard "call-up" process will be followed for activating teams to Louisiana. In the meantime, individuals and churches can help with the impending financial needs that will support both physical and spiritual relief to the people suffering as a result of the disaster.

If you would like to support the disaster relief effort write your check to Southwestern Baptist Church and designate in the check memo that it is for the Louisiana Disaster Relief. Then drop it into the offering plate as it is passed today. You will be helping with a significant event. Any checks received that do not have a designation will be used for General Disaster Relief.

Please support this relief effort, as well, by praying for the flood victims and for all those who are helping with this disaster relief effort.

Thank you for your support!
